To Mrs. Mary Hardtner Blackstock

It is good to have friends. Colleges as well as individuals esteem highly the lasting value of generous friendship. Through many years the loyalty of Mrs. Mary Hardtner Blackstock to the welfare of MacMurray College has been repeatedly and substantially demonstrated; in real appreciation of her kindness and of her benefactions to the College, the Class of 1944 wishes to dedicate to her its Illiwoco. We take pride and pleasure in recognizing once more the generosity of one of MacMurray College's very best friends—Mrs. Mary Hardtner Blackstock.

FOREWORD

Because we believe in the peace that will come after the war, MacMurray's policy has been one of looking forward to the day when its students will become responsible and dependable citizens of this world . . . Because we believe that a liberal arts education will train young women to live intelligently in the world of tomorrow, we are continuing in our studies, but with a new seriousness. We are working to build strong bodies, sound minds, and clean spirits, and we shall not be found lacking when our loved ones return. We, too, shall grow in this experience of war and come out of it finer women, fully equipped to build a better world for our children. This book is an effort to show how we have adjusted our program of education to the necessities and demands of war, and yet have not allowed this to blur our vision of the high ideals of of our college creed—Knowledge, Faith, and Service.

A quiet corner of Pfeiffer Library — Bea Person, Louise Ercanbrack, Jean Bimrose, and Ann Rhodes.

When students are undecided about the course of their future work as related to their choice of studies in college, they go to see Dean Wendell S. Dysinger for vocational advice. By discovering each one's special aptitudes and preferences, he helps make each MacMurray graduate better fitted to assume her individual place in the world after her college days are over.

WE ADMIRE AND RESPECT

Dean Roma N. Hawkins is the one who has charge of social affairs here at Mac-Murray. A charming example of what she advocates, she gives to the students a true picture of the College ideals of gracious womanhood. Always understanding and truly friendly to those she comes in contact with,—these words typify our Dean Hawkins, whom we shall long remember.

A kind and helpful advisor to all students—that is Dean Mary E. Baird. In addition to her other duties, she serves as advisor of the sophomore class activities. Matters relating to dormitory life also come under her field of work for, and with, the students. We know that in all her endeavors, she truly works for the best interests of MacMurray, for which we are grateful.

Harold E. Gibson

One of the busiest people on campus is Mr. Harold E. Gibson, bang-up Director of Publicity, who this year added the position of Director of Admissions to his string of activities. He is also coach of the college debate team, advisor of both college publications, the GREETINGS and the ILLIWOCO. He is always on the go, and has three secretaries trying to keep up with him.

THE ADMINISTRATION

E. Clarendon Smith

Mr. Clarendon "Yorker" Smith is a new-comer to the MacMurray administrative staff this year. From Illinois College he came to MacMurray to be our Business Manager, and in addition is financial advisor for the GREETINGS. Already many improvements on campus attest to his presence. His friendly manner makes him a welcome addition and a favorite with all the students.

PRESIDENT CLARENCE P. McCLELLAND

President and Mrs. McClelland

President Clarence P. McClelland, or, as he is more commonly known, "President Mac," is one of our favorite people on campus. There is small wonder that we like him as well as we do, for we can always depend upon him to be an understanding friend to each and every one of us in the student body.

In the years that he has been here, from 1925 to the present, our president has worked long and hard in the interests of the College. Proof that his efforts in its behalf have been successful is shown by the increase in buildings and total facilities of MacMurray College, and by a rapid rise in enrollment year by year.

We have made great strides forward in continual improvement, and no small amount of this progress is undeniably due to our own beloved "President Mac."

Mrs. Clarence P. McClelland, charming and gracious wife of the president, serves the college capably as coordinator of its various social activities.

The year 1942-1943 saw the establishment of a graduate school at MacMurray College. The administration of the college in founding the department for work with handicapped children made use of the unusual facilities which the location of the college in Jacksonville provides. The training will also meet a great need by preparing workers for child welfare service. Completion of required study in the school leads to the degree of Master of Arts.

By arrangement with the Illinois State Department of Public Welfare, the School for the Deaf, the School for the Blind, the State Mental Hospital, all located within the city of Jacksonville, and the State School and Colony for the Feeble-minded at Lincoln, Illinois, and the Institute for Juvenile Research at Chicago, all are co-operating in the project and will give graduate students opportunity for practical application of their studies.

Students taking graduate study must specialize in one of the various fields, in testing, work with the deaf or the blind, with the psychotic, or the feeble-minded, the delinquent, or the problem child.

Students must be college graduates before undertaking this study. MacMurray College offers excellent opportunities for this type of work.

BEAUTIFUL ANN RUTLEDGE

With a little seriousness—aware that the world today is far from a smoothly running world—with more than a little resoluteness—determined to do their very best wherever they are most needed—the senior class of 1943 brings to a close four years of work, play, and fun together and preparation for the future.

Remember the seniors for: their sponsor-with-ideas-and-action, Miss Mary Presper, who took Mrs. William G. McCloskey's place ("Miss Ann," to the campus) for the class' senior year; their formal senior tea, the annual affair to which the mothers of seniors are especially invited, which was planned by Margaret Studebaker and Marge Greer.

Remember them for their Senior Ball, designed on the theme of "Snowflakes and Ice" and arranged by Chairman Bea Giessing with gracious Harriet Layne presiding as Queen of the Ball; their rousing project to the patriotic tune of "Cheers from the Campus," led by June Clark and Fran Larson. The seniors danced, the seniors sang, the seniors acted, and put over a successful show, the last in a series of four during their four college years.

Remember them for their Thursday morning breakfasts in the second floor lounge of Ann Rutledge Hall; their officers—president, Alice Finney; vice-president, Jan Blake; recording secretary, Betty Knight; corresponding secretary, Betty Spikes; treasurer, Bea Giessing.

Remember them for their seventy-six campus personalities; their fun; their spirit. "Here's to the seniors, the best of them all!"

THE Junior Class IS "AT

Under the sponsorship of Miss Carrie Spencer, the class of 1944 began their junior year in September with a serenade for their sister class, the newest Mac girls. The freshmen were also entertained in October with a party directed by Bette Hart.

In November the P.E. Cabin was the scene of an all-class picnic which was fun for everyone. As their good deed for the month, the juniors entertained the senior class with a picture show and refreshments, arranged by Victoria Meents, general chairman for the affair.

Mary Frances Anger and Phyllis Campbell co-planned the class project, "Cookies, Not Rookies," which was given in the campus Little Theater on January 30.

February 16, the junior class decorated the chapel for the recognition service for the freshman class, and in the evening the juniors were hostesses to the freshmen at a formal dinner in McClelland Hall.

The social highlight of the year, from a junior point of view, was the class Prom on February 27 with Nancy Black as chairman. Jean Belote was elected queen of the prom, with Bette Hart and Betty Rae Ragan as her attendants. For the first time in school history, the dance was opened to all MacMurray students. The Lantern Ceremony and Inter-Class Sing were inaugurated by the juniors as a farewell for the class of '43.

Other junior activities were the publication of the MacMurray Directory and of the Illiwoco. Patricia Cole was general chairman of the directory committee, and the Illiwoco, MacMurray's yearbook, was edited by Mary Edith Kinnaman, with Joan Lukeman as business manager.

Much of the class' success during its junior year lies in its wise choice of officers. Eva Mae Chambers served as president; Gwendolyn Schwab, as vice-president; Betty Fay Fry, as recording secretary; Betty Ann Green, as corresponding secretary; and Inge Hellwig, as treasurer.

The opening months of school proved to be busy ones for the members of the Class of 1945. They were on hand early to welcome the incoming freshmen and act as their counselors during orientation week.

At the head of the class was President Rosemary Sheehan. Lucille Sommer served as vice-president, Ann Ellen Jones as treasurer, and Betty Holmstrom as secretary. Directed by these officers, the sophomores made plans for Senior Recognition. They decorated the chapel and entertained the members of their sister class at table parties.

On October 30, 1942, the freshmen were initiated by the sophomores, who added something special and original to the traditional initiation ceremony—the idea of serving the freshmen breakfast in bed on "The Morning After" as a reward for their sportsmanship on "The Night Before."

After the seniors' Cut Day, they were welcomed back by neatly turned down beds, and again, on the occasion of the Senior Ball, the seniors found their sisters, the sophomores, ready and eager to help in making the affair a complete success.

At the annual Christmas Bazaar, the sophomore booth was a popular one with its stock of hand-made old-fashioned flannel night gowns. After working hard to make their part in the bazaar successful, the sophomores thought they deserved some special relaxation, and found it in their Christmas party.

February 13 was the date for the sophomore class project. A valentine theme was very successfully worked out by Chairman Mary Ann Barnes and her committees. The project was located in three places: the social room, where guests played cards and saw a style show featuring sophomore models; the gym, where there was an exhibition of roller skating; and the Hub, where a floor show, a number of side shows, dancing, and refreshments were the attractions.

The Sophomore Dance, held March 6, next claimed the attention of this busy group. Sally Royal was chairman for the affair and her committee was Doris Doenges, Phyllis Smethills, and Jessie Daniel.

In between times, the sophomores had fun at a class picnic at Nichols Park, a class breakfast on December 3, and informal Sunday night gatherings at which they were the quest of Miss Mary Baird, class sponsor.

OF THE Freshman Class

This year's freshman class is something rather special as classes go, for its members will graduate in 1946, a jubilee year for MacMurray. It will mark the observance of the hundredth year since the founding of the college. And in the midst of that celebration will be the class of 1946—MacMurray's centennial class.

Arriving for the first time, the freshmen found MacMurray was a busy place. The class of '46 met and dealt with such matters as getting unpacked and acquainted, orientation week, and the selection of officers. Betty Stanford was elected president; Beatrice Person, vice-president; Virginia Bliss, secretary; and Philna Jacobi, treasurer. Audrey Johnson and Carrie Arnold were chosen to be freshman representatives to the S. G. A.

Initiation activities had hardly subsided when preparations for the annual freshman amateur night were begun. The variety of talent that was displayed in the "Centennial Room" made it a very successful project and the profit from it was used for the purchase of war bonds. Talent continued to be evident during the year in various freshman programs, in songs for the junior recognition, and in the originality of the dining hall decorations for Thanksgiving.

With Christmas came more traditions to be enjoyed and shared for the first time—carolling through town, vespers, and Mrs. Rowland's party with the big Christmas tree and a blazing fire in the Social Room fireplace to lend atmosphere. Class recognition accompanied by table parties as the guests of their sister class, the juniors, was a high point second semester.

Busy with mixers, teas, sports, and studies, but never too busy to make friends and have fun, the Centennial Class climaxed a wonderful year with the Freshman Dance.

We Govern Ourselves Through S.G.A.

The MacMurray Student Government Association was prompt to gear itself to war time needs and emergencies. A committee for civilian defense was created, headed by Jean Palmer. This committee pricked the conscience of the student body with conservation reminders, the sale of war stamps, and the observation of Pearl Harbor Day.

Student Government's plan of semi-compulsory library attendance for freshmen saw a successful beginning under Rachel White's direction.

Three members of S.G.A.—Sara Yager, Peg Gregory, and Ann Laufer—attended the regional convention of the National Students' Federation of America at Purdue University in November, and reported to the student body on their trip. Teedo Weers was to have attended the National N.S.F.A. Convention at Michigan State in December, but it was postponed because of transportation difficulties.

In December, the Board observed a "retreat" which took place at the P.E. cabin and was effective in discussing the problems which confront the board, possible solutions, and a successful launching of S.G.A. activities for 1943.

Officers of this organization, of which each student is a member, were: Doris Arnold, president; Harriet Layne, judicial director; Sara Yager, vice-president; Peg Gregory, orientation chairman; Theodora Weers and Rita Sve, house presidents of Main and Harker; Kay Smith, secretary; and Ann Laufer, treasurer.

All Students Participate in Y.W.C.A.

Y. W. C. A. Recognition Service, September 25, introduced to the student body the 1942-43 officers of this all-school organization—Florence Oltman, president; Mildred Worner, vice-president; Betty Black, secretary; and Maxine Morris, treasurer. Betty Nichols was chosen as the representative of the freshman class.

The faculty coffee was one of the first functions at which the Y.W. was hostess. On Thanksgiving Day, the Board arranged the traditional tea dance, held during the afternoon in the Social Room of Main Hall.

Just the week before Christmas vacation the Y.W.C.A. sponsored the annual all-school caroling jaunt, when groups of girls visited homes of shut-ins. After the girls returned from the cold out-of-doors, hot cocoa and cakes were served in the social room, where Dr. and Mrs. McClelland greeted everyone.

The annual Christmas bazaar which is sponsored jointly by the Y. W. C. A. and the A. C. E. next claimed the attention of the group and proved to be a decided success. December 6 was the date of the children's Christmas party, and during second semester the Y. W. board arranged and carried out a similar Easter party.

February 10 to 14 the Y.W.C.A. sponsored Heart Sister Week on the campus. Notes and gifts were slipped mysteriously under doors, and the climax was Sunday night supper in the Social Room, where heart sisters found each other.

A fund was established by the organization which will allow Mac to be represented by a greater number of girls at the Geneva Conference this June. Thanks are due the faculty advisory board whose helpfulness and interest during the past year have been very much appreciated.

A meeting of the A. A. Board is held every Monday evening to discuss plans for the coming athletic events. During these meetings arrangements for each event are discussed and any difficulties which present themselves are ironed out. At the instigation of the Board the Athletic Association has sponsored many events during the year, such as all-school parties, Play Days, interclass sports, the traditional Army-Navy games, and "seasons" of all the major sports. Each year the A.A. gives awardsnumerals, letters, seals—to those girls who completed the required number of seasons' credits by participating in several sports throughout the year. The A. A. this year has affiliated with the Riding, Dance, and Macauatic clubs to make a new and enlarged Athletic Association. For the first time all forms of organized recreation on the campus have come under one efficient management. The Board is made up of the officers of the Association and the representatives from each class. This year the office of president was filled by Betty Kriegshauser, vice-president by Jan Wessel, secretary by Jean Smith, treasurer by Mary Marcellus, and publicity manager by Jan Blake. The class representatives were Gail Sleister for the seniors, Jean Cameron for the juniors, June Hauer for the sophomores, and Phyllis Metz for the freshmen. The Board and its able advisor, Dr. Rearick, have worked together all year to make the Association a success. Many plans have been made and carried out in all types of sports, such as riding, hockey, swimming, softball, and many others. Besides all of this work the "All Out for Defense" program which the A.A. sponsored has grown larger than it has ever been before on the campus. The board deserves special credit for this work.

I. R. C. Promotes International Understanding

The International Relations Club of Mac-Murray, sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, is one of many such clubs in colleges all over the world. This year the members of I. R. C., together with their faculty advisor and coordinator of activities, Dr. Walter B. Hendrickson, have participated actively in an attempt to increase the knowledge and interest of the student body in world affairs.

A new project was launched this year, the "I.R.C. News Round-Ups," which became a popular and much-appreciated service on the campus. Every week a fifteenminute news summary was presented in each of the four residence halls by a faculty member or a competent member of the club.

On the Science Hall bulletin board up-tothe-minute news clippings were posted, and in the library a number of new and timely books presented to the club by the Carnegie Endowment were displayed on special shelves and thus made available to all.

The highlight of the year was the Mid-

West Conference of International Relations Clubs held on the MacMurray campus April 2 and 3. Speakers sent by the Carnegie Endowment addressed the delegates.

The Club had a very successful year under the leadership of Marjory Merrill, president; Doris Takesue, vice-president; Helen Ingram, secretary; Jennie Mae Childress, treasurer.

Plans are made for the Mid-West Conference of all International Relations Clubs, April 2 and 3.

MacMurray's Largest Musical Group-Madrigal

One of the largest and most important musical organizations on the MacMurray College campus is the Madrigal Club, which functions under the direction of Mr. Joseph Cleeland, head of the music department. The club was organized nearly a quarter of a century ago for the purpose of singing good vocal music on several special occasions during the school year. Membership is composed mostly of freshmen, but the club is open to all college students who like to sing.

The first of the opportunities which the club received to serve the college musically this year was the Christmas Vespers Service, in which they sang several numbers. Then, during second semester, a greater number of public performances added impetus and enthusiasm to the practices held two evenings a week. The cast of Hansel and Gretel, the first opera presented on the MacMurray College campus for a number of years, included many Madrigal members, who handled the chorus work. Another activity on their calendar for the year was a radio program presented over the Jackson-ville station, WLDS; and the climax of all their performances was the Easter Vespers Service, in which they sang the "Halllelujah, Amen," from Beethoven's Mount of Olives.

Most freshmen interested in vocal work begin their musical careers at MacMurray as members of the Madrigal Club, from which they gain valuable training and a great deal of enjoyment. Later they may join the College Choir or become soloists.

Twenty-two upperclass girls, picked for their outstanding singing and musical ability—these are the members of the College Choir. An important group on the MacMurray campus, their organization furnishes musical entertainment and many other services for the students of the College. Furnishing music for the weekly chapel services held in Centenary Church is the Choir's greatest contribution to the school.

Officers, elected at the beginning of the year, were: President, Frances Larson; secretary-treasurer, Betty Spikes; librarian, Marjorie Richards. The Choir is under the competent direction of Mr. David Strickler. Beatrice Giessing has served as a capable accompanist.

This year marked the beginning of a custom which the members will continue annually; namely, the presentation of a gift to the music department from the Choir. With funds earned and contributed by the Choir of 1942, black music folders were purchased for the use of the Choir in chapel services.

During the course of the year, the Choir performed from manuscript compositions written for them by their conductor. These were the "Benediction Amen," which has been used in the chapel services; also, the numbers "How Radiant Shines The Morning Star," "Three-Part Motet," and "One Thing Have I Desired of The Lord."

Because of the lack of transportation facilities, the annual Choir trip was temporarily discontinued. The Spring Concert was given in April, providing plesaure for the entire student body. The Choir also collaborated with the Madrigal Club in the presentation of Christmas and Easter Vespers.

The College Choir-Twenty-two Girls and a Man

MacMurray's Band, in addition to furnishing fine music for programs and parades, enjoys the distinction of being one of only two all-girl college bands in the country.

Organized four years ago, our twenty-eight piece band is under the direction of Mr. David L. Strickler, member of the music faculty. His student conductor is Bonnie Ruth Kent. Dorothy Stonecipher, a freshman, is solo clarinetist.

Last Armistice Day the MacMurray Band dressed up in its very best—blue skirts, gold sweaters with the initial "M," and blue and gold caps—and took part in a service at the Square and the parade through Jacksonville which followed.

Founder's Day, the Band played for a dedicatory service in Hardtner Gymnasium. With the approach of Thanksgiving, the Band enthusiastically suported the hockey season by furnishing music for the Army-Navy Rally.

Friday, February 19, the group presented its annual concert. The crowd that gathered in Music Hall for the occasion heard performed "The Egmond Overture" by Beethoven, selections from Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts," and "Prelude and Fugue" by Bach, as well as stirring marches—"Semper Fidelis," "Stars and Stripes Forever," and "Washington Post."

Dads who arrived in March for the day dedicated to them, were entertained in Music Hall at a program to which the Band contributed the music.

During Commencement Week, on the evening of May 14, music for a concert and campus sing was furnished by MacMurray's Band, an organization which all the school enjoys and of which it is particularly proud.

Students Show Great Interest in Modern Dance

Modern Dance Club is not really a club at all in the usual sense of the word, for it has no officers and its members are linked together by a single common interest—an interest in modern dancing. Attendance is not required, but Tuesday evenings usually find the whole gang out, anxious to improve their skill in dancing through practice.

Miss Mahany of the Physical Education department advises this group of thirteen. Twice a year, girls with experience and some degree of ability in modern dance may try out for membership, the size of the group being unlimited.

Several times a year, the abilities of this club are displayed. Members gave an interpretive demonstration as part of the program for an A.A. Open House first semester, wearing the usual costume of the dance, their black leotards. It has been the custom for years for the Modern Dance Club to form the nucleus of the May Day pageant, but because of the war the annual presentation was curtailed. It is hoped in the future that May Day will again take place on our campus, and when it does, the Modern Dance Club will be well prepared to resume its part in it. In the meantime members keep on with their meetings for the sheer enjoyment they get from dancing.

News rounduppers keep us informed weekly on world events.... We study chemistry in the lab... and practice first aid... and meet to write letters to friends in the armed forces... and bring outside speakers to the campus for speeches and interviews.

Mac Murray Cooperates in Every Way

In December 1941, immediately after Pearl Harbor, the Civilian Defense Committee, which later became the MacMurray College War Council, made its debut as an organization on the compus. Functioning through various other college groups for the purpose of co-ordinating MacMurray's contribution to the war effort, the War Council has been vastly successful during the eighteen short months of its existence. Recently the work of the Council has been entrusted entirely to student hands, with the faculty members still acting as an advisory group.

Among the activities of the War Council on the campus during the past year, the sale of war stamps at a booth in the Hub has been outstanding. Pearl Harbor Day, 1942, witnessed the beginning of this project, which was continued at least one day every month thereafter.

Those aspects of the MacMurray war effort more definitely co-ordinated with other campus activities were classified as physical fitness, conservation, education, and information. In connection with the Athletic Association's afternoon play program, the Council urged regular exercise as an essential to physical fitness. As a result, about 75 per cent of the MacMurray students participated in this activity during the year. Also, sufficient rest and proper food were emphasized as particularly important under present excessive strains and demands.

Working in close co-operation with the administration and with the International Relations Club, the War Council placed at the disposal of MacMurray girls a wealth of opportunities for gaining information

Hallett Abend, noted commentator, speaks on the strategy in the Far East. . . . Chaplain Giles tells us of conditions in the army camps. . . . about world affairs. Attendance at the I.R.C. News Round-Ups was strongly advised for all who desired a swift and comprehensive summary of each week's news. Also, the War Council called attention to the store of timely informative reading material on the world affairs shelf of the library and encouraged students to audit the lectures held every Monday evening in connection with the credit course on background issues of the war.

Courses offering practical training for the war emergency were continued in the college curriculum, and some were added on the recommendation of the War Council. These included first aid, home nursing, nutrition, and air raid warden service.

Keynoting the conservation campaign inaugurated at MacMurray were slogans such as "Lights Out," "Observe the Clean Plate Policy," and "That Telephone Call—Is It Necessary?" Rooms were checked to see that unused electricity was conserved; meatless days were instituted in the college dining hall; and telephone calls were reduced in length and number when accusing fingers pointed out from posters in the telephone booths.

The MacMurray War Council does not work alone or independently. During the second semester, MacMurray girls have helped the Jacksonville Red Cross to fill their quota of bandages, and always the War Council functions in close co-operation with the Jacksonville Civilian Defense Committee. Thus MacMurray College accepts her share of the burden of a nation at war and tries to offer a substantial and worthwhile contribution towards victory.

Who are the members of the Players' Guild, the MacMurray honorary dramatic organization? Why, they're the girls here here at school who have contributed unselfish service to the Theater, working in any branch of endeavor. One of the requirements for membership is junior or senior status. In addition, the candidate must have attended MacMurray for at least one year in order to be eligible.

Only one officer is elected each year to be in charge of the many affairs of the Guild. This leader is the president, who, this year, as also was the case last year, is Betsey Purnell. Betsey also holds the responsible position of treasurer of the College Theater.

By its efforts, the Players' Guild contributes a great deal toward entertainment on campus. Its purpose is to further dramatic interest and activities on the MacMurray campus and to serve as an advisory board of the College Theater. That the members are hard at work (and successfully!) on their aim is shown by their sponsorship of the Freshman Societies' One-Act Play Contest, the Freshman Variety Show, and the activities of Founders' Day. They also supervise the productions of the College Theater.

Then, after providing the student body with great enjoyment by the fruits of their labors, the Players' Guild provides recreation for itself, too. Traditional is a May Day breakfast the morning of May 1, with a menu of sweet rolls, fresh strawberries, bacon, scrambled eggs, radish sandwiches, and coffee.

This organization certainly makes its presence felt and appreciated here at MacMurray. Therefore, as long as these hard-working and talented girls are in charge, we in the grateful student body feel that, definitely, "the show must go on"—and we'll be right there in the front row, waiting for the curtain to go up!

"Letters to Lucerne"

ACT I, SCENE II: When Icarus looked down at the people he loved, he knew he could not harm them, so with his spear against his breast he flew straight upon the rocks.

ACT II, SCENE II: Why do you wish to see Erna Schmidt?

Madame, she is a citizen of the German Reich.

The MacMurray College Little Theater began a successful year, under the direction of Mr. Herbert Philippi, with the production of "Lettres to Lucerne." Its story, set in a girls' school in Switzerland, treated an international student situation during wartime. The cast, which consisted of several veteran actresses, was headed by Betsey Purnell, Jane Lyman and Alice Finney. And topping the less experienced group was a freshman, Margy Lou James.

Something new in the Little Theater work this year was the presentation of the Stage Door Canteen. Under the direction of Miss Dorothy Remley, two one-act plays were presented for the benefit of the Stage Door Canteen. Since the plays made very little use of scenery and costume, the admission was entirely Canteen contribution. The canteen plays were entitled "The Tenth Word" and "The Three Pills."

Dad's Day in March found a slight change in the drama program. This year, the winning play of the Freshman One-Act Play Contest made its second showing for the Dads. It was Kappa Sigma Theta's "No Man's Land," directed by Betty Rae Ragan.

The last play of the year was the current "George Washington Slept Here." Mr. Philippi staged and adopted the play for an all-woman cast. Most of the cast were newcomers to the MacMurray stage. Leads were taken by Mary Bagale and Ann Ellen Jones.

Cap and Gown Honors Four Outstanding Girls

After last chapel in May, 1942, the student body assembled at the steps of Old Main. The time had again come for the members of Cap and Gown, MacMurray's senior honor society, to select their successors. Before an excited audience, the retiring members presented single roses, symbolic of membership in MacMurray's highest society, to Doris Arnold, Alice Finney, Elizabeth Solem, and Sara Yager.

Doris Arnold, S.G.A. president and member of the Players' Guild, has been active during her years at MacMurray as a member of Theta Sigma, the Debate Team, and the Greetings feature staff. Alice Finney, Phi Nu, president of the graduating class, and winner, her junior year, of the Conlee-

Kent Cup, has starred in the Little Theater and about the campus.

Elizabeth Solem, president of Theta Sigma and the Intersociety Council, and past president of Scribblers Club, has made a significant contribution to her class and to the school. Sara Yager has been active in several fields, being vice-president of the S.G.A. and a member of the A.A. council, the Macquatic Club and the P.E. Club.

These, then are the Cap and Gown members of the class of '43. By this honor, the members of the society for '41-'42 and the college recognize these four senior girls as most nearly representative of the qualities expressed by our college motto—knowledge, faith, and service.

Ann Laufer — Knowledge, Faith and Service are exemplified by her . . . a genuine sincerity and natural friendliness.

Ann Laufer Is Awarded the Conlee-Kent Cup

The Conlee-Kent Cup, given in memory of two members of the class of 1932, is awarded each year to the junior who has best lived up to the ideals of MacMurray College during her sophomore year.

Our motto, "Knowledge, Faith, and Service," is indeed exemplified by Ann Laufer—the girl who will be remembered for her natural ways, her genuine friendliness, and her devotion to Nelson Eddy. No one will ever hear "Wanting You" without thinking of Ann's continual singing of it.

Although her major is chemistry, she has a broad knowledge of things in general, for she scored the highest on Sophomore Tests. Last year, Ann served as Librarian of Theta Sigma society. She was appointed sponsor of a freshman society, Epsilon Kappa Phi, and was elected treasurer of the Student Government Association. She has participated in athletics and has served on many committees. Ann can well be described by two words—inconspicuous and important. She is modestly inconspicuous, but what she does is important.

That contagious smile, and a song just beneath the surface.

We Planned It and Put It Together

The staff of the Illiwoco for 1943 presents the first annual produced during an entire year of war. A special effort was made to beat the students in getting out this year. Working under the editor-in-chief, Mary Edith Kinnaman, were these capable staff members: Gabrielle Eisner, assistant editor; Betty Rae Ragan, literary editor; Grace Fenne, art editor; Helen Duffner, index and faculty editor; Maybelle Reeder, sports editor; Bonnie Kent, society editor; Margaret Seymour, snaps editor; and the copy staff: Alice Godard, Margrette Lyman, Mary Fran Lyster, Sally Conant, and Ardeen Black.

We wish to thank Miss Nellie Knopf of the Art department for her advice on the cover. Appreciation is also due to our class sponsor, Miss Spencer, who kept us on our toes. Her familiar "Are you worried yet?" as she poked her head in the door of our room will long be remembered by us.

We began last fall without an experienced student photographer. We think Tan Minard has done remarkably well and made considerable improvement during the year. Mr. Gibson deserves notice for his campus views, including our color picture. We also want to mention Cecine Cole for the number of snapshots she took. So here it is—we hope you like it!

An essential factor in editing a yearbook in war as well as in peace times is the business staff. The business staff of the 1943 Illiwoco consisted of Joan Lukeman, business manager; Dorothy McGinnis, assistant business manager; Bette Hart, assistant advertising manager; Nancy Black, circulating manager. These so-called "Breadwinners," whose combined efforts brought large returns in the form of that very essential pecuniary item — money — made the publication of a yearbook possible.

The various sources of income were secured from advertisements taken by Jacksonville merchants, subscriptions from students and faculty members, and income from school clubs, organizations, and classes.

Heretofore we had always been financially aided by the returns of an Illiwoco allschool dance, but this year, due to existing war conditions, the staff deemed it advisable not to undertake such a big task.

Last November the business staff sent a representative to the National Collegiate Press Association, which was held in Chicago this year. Many interesting suggestions were brought home, mostly pertaining to improvements of advertising and advice as to how to get more advertisements even though it is much harder to make money in war times.

GREETINGS

Putting out a weekly newspaper in wartime is the job the editorial staff of the Mac-Murray College Greetings has had. Each and every week of the school year has been fully covered by a six-page edition and, on special occasions, by an eight-page edition.

Staff meetings are held early Monday morning at which the previous issue is discussed and criticized, and assignments for the next issue are given out. All articles are handed in by Thursday plus all the pictures for the issue which is "put to bed" Saturday morning. Proof readers have assigned hours which begin on Thursday and continue to the time the paper "goes to bed."

In addition to their duties on campus, the editor and advertising manager went to the three-day National A.C.P. convention held at the Knickerbocker Hotel in Chicago, November 5, 6, and 7, at which they received instructions for improving the paper.

Greetings Staff Covers the Campus News

Business Staff Handles All Money Problems

The business end of publishing the Mac-Murray College Greetings this year was handled by a competent staff of ten girls, with Jo Ann Lyman as business manager and Marion Stewart as advertising manager. The regular responsibilities of the staff towards the newspaper included transaction of advertising; collection and payment of bills; distribution of the paper, both to college students and to outside subscribers; supervision of copy; and arrangement of social affairs for both newspaper staffs.

During first semester, Marion Stewart represented the business staff at the National Collegiate Press Conference in Chicago, and in the spring two other staff members, Jo Ann Lyman and Helen Lantis, attended the Illinois College Press Conference in Champaign. Throughout the entire year, indeed, the staff maintained close contact with the changes in the modern journalistic world.

Several social activities required the attention of the staff during the college year, the most outstanding of them being the annual "Greetings" dance, or Snow Ball, as it was called; the breakfast at the Dunlap Hotel on the following morning; and the newspaper banquet held for both business and editorial staffs in the late spring.

None Is Better Than Old Belles Lettres

Another eventful year for Belles Lettres society began in September under the leadership of Betty Spikes, the new president, assisted by Doris Greenwalt, vice-president; Eva Mae Chambers, recording secretary; Frances Larson, corresponding secretary; Marjorie Merrill, treasurer; and Betty Lou Hasenjaeger, keeper of the archives.

The first major event of the society was rush week. The parties were based on a circus theme, with Jean Livengood and Anna Louise Rataichak acting as "ring masters." Invitations sent to rushees were in the form of a circus bill, inviting them to a barbeque at "Shadrack's Show Lot" and a "Big Top Dinner Dance" at the Dunlap Hotel. At the close of the evening, a piece of a large, delicious cake, made in the shape and coloring of the society pin, was given to each rushee.

Belles Lettres celebrated Halloween by serenading the dormitories. Huge jack-olantems lighted their way around campus.

The main project for the first semester was the redecoration of the society hall under the direction of Dorothy McGinnis, an art major. The colors used included brown, rust, yellow, and chartreuse. New draperies, new covers for the davenports and chairs, new lamp shades, and a large mirror are some of the improvements that were added.

At the Y.W.C.A. Christmas Bazaar, Belles Lettres society sold MacMurray banners, stationery, and playing cards. Bette Hart and Anna Louise Rataichak acted as co-chairmen for the booth.

The society Open Meeting was held March 10th, using the theme of a minstrel show, "Blackout at Grauman's Theater." Directing the show were Peg Gregory and Charlotte Prather. At the close of the Open Meeting, Belles Lettres held its Alumnae Coffee in the newly decorated hall.

Other social activities of the year included a bridge party with Theta Sigma society in April, a spring picnic at the P. E. Cabin, and the annual Alumnae Banquet in May.

Fun, Fellowship Mark Lambda Alpha Mus

Lambda Alpha Mu society began its social season with a formal dinner during rush week. The old-fashioned charm of the Colonal Inn with Rush Captain Edith Reed welcoming guests in the black lace gown her grandmother had worn one hundred years before set the theme of the evening, "candlelight and shadows." A few days later, Lambda gave its second rush party, the "Skating Fete," in Hardtner Gymnasium. Stuffed animals were used in decoration and were later given the rushees.

During hell week Lambda pledges were seen strolling around campus in their pajama tops, with tooth brushes in their hands, alarm clocks around their necks, and a pillow slip of candy thrown over their shoulders. Formal initiation of the pledges proved a pleasing contrast to the excitement of hell week. The pledges in their turn, entertained their sister members.

In November Lambda members serenaded the dormitories in pouring rain, singing, "Pray for sunshine, but always be prepared for rain." Margrette Lyman was chosen Bazaar chairman, and Lambda sold knitted hair bows, Hawaiian leis, handpainted place cards, and knitting needle mittens.

Lambda's had a Christmas party in the society hall. Christmas stories were told, carols were sung, and Christmas candy was served. In the spring the society hall was re-decorated. In February the members spent a week-end at the P. E. cabin. Helen Ingram was in charge of planning the outing. The open meeting was held late in April, the Alumna banquet in May.

Officers for the year were: president, Elnora Sheldon; vice-president, Edith Reed; secretary, Ruth Thomson, and treasurer, Phyllis Campbell.

Phi Nu began the year by following Jane Lyman, president, into a new project for the redecoration of the society hall. Grace Fenne, with the able assistance of Miss Nellie Knopf and the backing of the alumnae, carried the project to a successful finish. The color scheme was worked out in yellows and blues.

Assisting Jane in leading the society through an enjoyable year were Do Ann Granier, vice president; Bea Giessing, corresponding secretary; Helen Lantis, recording secretary; and Betty Rae Ragan, treasurer. The first rush party in the debutantes' date books was a Country Outing at Millwood, the vacation home of Mrs. Rowe Samuell. The social whirl culminated with the Debutante Ball at the Hotel Dunlap. Following the pinning of new members, the group did their traditional snake dance to Ham's for cokes.

On November 7th the new members of Phi Nu society entertained the old members with an overnight party at the P. E. cabin. The girls breakfasted on longjohns and fruitjuice around a crackling fire.

Marge Eustis headed the committee for the Christmas Bazaar booth. Gift items, such as stationery and novelty pins, from Your Shop, were sold.

Due to war economy, the Alumnae Coffee was abandoned this year, and the alumnae were invited to Open Meeting instead. Mary Ann Barnes and Sally Royal planned the interesting program given at Open Meeting.

Every year during the second semester, the society gives each of its senior members a token of remembrance. This year the traditional Phi Nu bracelets were given the first semester, because the supply of metal jewelry was becoming very uncertain. Belle Wakeman directed an impressive candlelight service for this occasion.

Shortly before vacation, the society serenaded the dormitories with Christmas carols.

The annual Alumnae Banquet was a happy, yet sad occasion—happy because many old friends turned out; sad, because for many it was a farewell party.

"The Feast of the Dawn," a rush breakfast held at the Dunlap Hotel, began the year for Theta Sigma, and it was soon followed by the "War Dance," another rush party, at the Colonial Inn. That concluded the first semester's rushing and the work of the rushing captains, Betsey Purnell and Mary Ellen Smith. Soon the pledges who so proudly wore their red, black, and gold ribbons were formally initiated.

The main project of the society for the year 1942-1943 was the purchase of a war bond which the girls then donated to Theta Sigma. Also enlargement of the society library was undertaken.

Appropriately enough, the theme of the Theta open meeting, held on Valentine's Day, was "Heart Trouble." The program was under the direction of Mary Ellen Smith, and it consisted of a series of five tableaux emerging from a frame which represented a large red and white valentine and depicting the dream of two little children on Valentine's Day. They watched the story of heart trouble unfold, first as it begins for a small boy and a small girl, then as it continues into adolescence, as it grows into true love and sweetheart relationships, as it braves the storms of serious "heart trouble," and finally as it reaches old age and lives in memory. At the conclusion of the program, Theta Sigma held its annual alumnae coffee in Theta Hall.

Among the various other activities of the society throughout the school year, a joint meeting and party with Belles Lettres, a picnic at the P. E. cabin, and an all-school serenade by candlelight were outstanding.

Those girls who held offices in Theta Sigma during the past year are as follows: Elizabeth Solem, president; Carolyn Mahan, vice-president; Mildred Worner, recording secretary; Marjory Greer, corresponding secretary; and Phoebe Wilkins, treasurer.

Alpha Kappa Sigma society is one of the two newly organized freshman societies. The members meet every other Monday in Jane Hall and their president, Barbara McCain, presides at all the meetings. The first event which the Alpha Kappa's enjoyed was the picnic held in the backyard of their sponsor, Ardeen Black.

On December 5, the members decided that they needed a vacation and so spent a night out in the P. E. cabin. But the vacation was short lived, because only too soon the society had to think of getting ready for the Y.W.C.A. Christmas bazaar, where they sold pottery.

Just before going home the members of Alpha Kappa Sigma reminded MacMurray girls of the coming Christmas season by serenading all the dorms. A Chinese party was also given for all freshman societies in the social room. Betty Ann Berkey, an Alpha Kappa Sigma girl, gave a talk with slides on China, where she has spent most of her life.

The society elected as their vice-president Jasmin Jenks; treasurer, Ruth Chin; secretary, June Spence; and as their inter-society representative, Donna Wilkey.

Delta Theta Nu's Work to Keep Cup

Delta Theta Nu carried on the standards which won for it last year the freshman society cup under the sponsorship of Helen Duffner, a junior alumna. The new officers are: Patricia Lanahan, president; La Rue White, vice-president; Cathryn Eddy, secretary; Betty Jean Reese, treasurer; Mary Elizabeth Smith, inter-society representative.

Louise Zech, assisted by Dorothy Dole, was in charge of the booth at the Y.W.C.A. Christmas bazaar. From their knic-nac booth with pale lavender crepe paper and ruffles, the society sold hand-painted wax pictures, MacMurray penny banks, and place cards.

In November, the members had rollicking fun and got better acquainted with one another at a roller-skating party in the gym. To make the party complete, seasonable refreshments in the form of doughnuts and cider were served.

The last week in November the society entered an act in the freshman amateur show competition. Their novel Gay Nineties Can Can Dance was one of the highlights of the show.

The theatrical efforts of the group for the freshman plays were directed by Sue Clark. The presentation was a one-act farce entitled "All My Life" by George Savage.

A formal coffee was held in one of the upper-class society halls. In the spring, the group went on an overnight trip to the P. E. cabin. The members had a picnic supper around the outdoor fireplace.

Epsilon Kappa Phi headquarters is Rutledge lounge.

Because every member went at her work with a will, striving to give Epsilon Kappa Phi a strong foothold in its first year of existence, and because of the untiring efforts of its sponsor, Ann Laufer, this organization successfully carried out its interesting activities during 1942-1943.

The following officers were elected to lead the society in its activities: Charis Wells, president; Margaret Dennis, vice-president; Marjorie Verhake, secretary; Suzanne Thiery, treasurer; Betty Walter, recorder of points; and Jeanne Valentine, representative to the inter-society council.

Since Epsilon Kappa Phi was new this year, its members were faced with the problem of choosing the society pins, and the beauty of their black and gold pin in the shape of a shield testifies to the success of their efforts.

An event that will be remembered by all members was the overnight Christmas party held at the P. E. Cabin, where Santa Claus with his grab bag helped to create the Christmas atmosphere.

In November, the society was entertained by Mrs. Schaeffer of the speech department. Her program was a series of short but pointed poems, one for each letter of the alphabet. The activity for December was the bazaar booth, where the members sold winter corsages of pine cones and holly.

A one-act play, entitled "Over the Teacups," and directed by Ann Rhodes, was presented in February in competition with other societies.

Kappa Sig's Enter into Activities

To open their socially eventful year with a bang, the freshman Kappa Sigma Theta society held a rollicking get-acquainted party at the P. E. Cabin.

Arline Durkin, the society's junior sponsor, installed the officers: Cleo Mavrick, president; Amy DeCou, vice-president; Maxine Shewalter, secretary; Carol Danforth, treasurer; Mariellen Dunnington, recorder of points; Joan Brown, inter-society council representative.

The Kappa Sigma Theta's reached the climax of their 1942 social and business activities in the planning and making of their projects for the Y.W.C.A. bazaar. Their unique wax necklaces, their attractive bridge sets, and their blue and white dresser scarfs made their booth a popular one.

Of their many exciting activities, those to be remembered especially are the society table parties in McClelland dining hall, where fun, laughter, and college songs were the order of the evening; the "kid party," when all the girls wore short frocks and pigtails; and the faculty coffee, which both guests and girls will remember as a great success. Also important on the Kappa Sigma Theta society's calendar of events are the several speakers who addressed them in their familiar meeting place, Main Hall reception room; the society's production for the freshman one-act play contest, "No Man's Land," directed by Betty Rae Ragan; and finally the annual spring banquet, the climax of a busy year, which was held on April 17 at the Colonial Inn.

Members work to win the inter-society cup.

An outing at the Physical Education Cabin began the year for members of Phi Tau Epsilon society. After a picnic supper, Phi Tau's sponsor, Betsy Purnell, suggested the election of officers for the coming year—Joan Craig, president; Virginia Foster, vice-president; Barbara Feldman, secretary; Joan Chesney, treasurer; Lucy Howard, intersociety council representative; and Jacqueline Lamb, keeper of the points.

In addition to regular meetings, the Phi Tau's had several special programs. On one occasion, Mrs. Schaeffer of the Speech Department entertained the society with a group of readings. A Christmas bazaar booth, under the direction of Marthajean Durian also occupied the time of Phi Tau members. The society presented "Charm Racket" as its entry in the annual freshman society one-act play contest.

Phi Tau Epsilon's spring banquet was held jointly with Kappa Sigma Theta on April 17. Chairman for the affair was Betty Nichols. Preparations for the society's coffee were directed by Louise Uhl. The coffee, which was held in the main lounge of Ann Rutledge dormitory, followed formal table parties in McClelland Hall.

A good time at the cabin to begin the year, a formal dinner to end it—this versatility in its activities has been one of the most enjoyable features of Phi Tau Epsilon's year.

Monday night finds the Phi Kappa's in Jane Lounge.

For the Phi Kappa Deltas, a variety program combined with their first social gathering inaugurated a year of fun and activity. Next, the society arranged table parties in McClelland Dining Hall so that the girls might become better acquainted. Decorated in purple and white, the attractive tables added to the pleasure of the occasion and offered an opportunity for the Phi Kappas to display their newly chosen colors.

When the ceremony for initiation of members and installation of officers was held on October 19, the girls were already under way with their activities, which included the arranging of a beautiful and unique scrapbook and the writing of several new society songs. At one memorable meeting during the first semester the Phi Kappas were conducted on "A Trip Through Hawaii" by the senior from Hawaii, Doris Takesue.

In December, the society featured "Get a Beau With a Bow"—yes, that purple and white booth at the Y.W.-A.C.E. Bazaar where Phi Kappa Delta sold big velvet bows and personalized postal cards.

First to claim their attention in 1943 was the production, "Life With Mother," which they entered in the freshman one-act play contest. With the assistance of Phyllis Gibbons, director, the cast worked long and earnestly to make it a success.

March saw them as charming hostesses at their faculty coffee, and April witnessed the climax of their activities in their annual spring banquet at the Colonial Inn.

At an impressive candlelight ceremony, Mary Ellen Smith, their sponsor, installed Mildred Moss, president; Sue Jamieson, vice-president; Jane Young, secretary; Betty Glass, treasurer; Minnie Lou Giachetto, recorder of points; and Rosanna Shanks, representative to the inter-society council.

Der Deutsche Klub Keeps Up German Traditions

The German Club, one of MacMurray's young and growing organizations, has as its goal a better appreciation of German literature and the German language. An attempt is made to realize this goal through monthly meetings of the club members, all of whom are taking at least one course in the German department.

Betty Benz served as president for the past school year; Judy Marston, as secretary; and Kay Lindeman, as treasurer.

Pleasant meeting hours are spent in singing the old German folk songs. Christmas is always a special event for the club members. This year, instead of the usual Christmas party, the group serenaded its sponsor, Dr. Frieda Gamper, with some of the loveliest of the traditional German Christmas carols.

The club's get-togethers encourage a spirit of true friendliness, comradeship, and close co-operation. Though only three years old, the German Club can well be proud of the achievements it has made.

Council Regulates Intersociety Affairs

Functioning to co-ordinate and regulate the activities of the upperclass literary societies at MacMurray College, the Inter-Society Council is composed of the presidents and vice-presidents of the four organizations represented. This governing body controls all major society functions, including rushing, alumnae coffees, spring banquets, and general financial affairs. Thus harmony, co-operation, and mutual support among the various societies are assured.

Because the societies represent a large and influential group on the MacMurray College campus, their officers feel that they should lend strong assistance to the war effort. Therefore, the council inaugurated several radical changes and placed certain restrictions upon society activities when the war situation became serious.

During the second semester, society members sacrificed the fourth Monday evening of every month, at which time they formerly had held regular meetings, in favor of participation in civilian Red Cross activity. Also the societies eliminated their dinner dances in order to reduce financial expenditure as well as frivolous use of time and effort. The alumnae coffees were incorporated with the open meetings as a further economy measure.

A revision of rushing procedure was decided upon after the college instituted the three-semester system. Girls were pledged in the spring as well as in the fall, and thus those prospective members planning to attend the summer session were granted use of the halls and other privileges of society membership.

The president of the Inter-Society Council during the 1942-1943 term was Elizabeth Solem of Theta Sigma; the secretary was Jane Lyman of Phi Nu. Other members were Doris Greenwalt and Betty Spikes, Belles Lettres; Elnora Sheldon and Edith Reed, Lambda Alpha Mu; Dorothy Ann Granier, Phi Nu; and Carolyn Mahan, Theta Sigma.

From the Shores of Lake Michigan-Chicago Club

Social gatherings are fun, and that is exactly the reason for which the Chicago Club was organized two years ago last December under the capable sponsorship of Miss Grace MacHortar. Members hail from a radius of fifty miles around the Chicago Loop, and the only requirement for joining the group is that one be a Mac-Murray girl of the past, present, or future. By establishing bonds of friendship and common interest, the club performs the pleasant function of welcoming incoming freshmen to a college made familiar on the first day. Also, it is a means by which the alumnae of the Chicago vicinity maintain contact with their alma mater.

Just before the beginning of school last fall, the girls were entertained by Elizabeth Solem at an afternoon tea to which new freshmen and transfers were invited. Like most of the major events on the Chicago Club's calendar, the next social gathering also occurred during a vacation. At Christmas time the members met in the Loop for a luncheon at Stoeffer's followed by a theater party.

Because spring vacation was shortened to a length of four days in an attempt to assist the war effort, the Chicago "Mac-ites" sacrificed their annual spring social affair. Table parties were held in McClelland Dining Hall as usual, however, the week before final examinations, and everyone present proclaimed them a success.

Before the close of the semester, plans were made for a summer picnic and officers for the coming year were chosen. Those for this year were Marguerite Sethness, president; Barbara Stuhler, secretary; and Marjorie McMaster, treasurer.

The Moonlight Shines Tonight Along the Wabash

On October 27 of this year, the Indiana Club was heard from once again after a silence of more than three years. At the organization meeting in the fall, the Hoosiers elected capable officers to carry on the work of the club for the year 1942-1943. Evelyn Anton, a sophomore, from Anderson, has held the executive position as president; Frances Nash, also a sophomore, from Fort Wayne, has been her right-hand helper in the office of vice-president; while Doris Kleymeyer, senior, hailing from Evansville, has more than adequately fulfilled the duties of secretary-treasurer. The loyal members of the club have worked enthusiastically in co-operation with these splendid leaders.

And, we can never say that those fifty girls from the Hoosier state in our midst have not been busily making the campus Indiana-conscious this year! Remember those lustily chorused songs voiced from their table parties last fall? Yes, such as—"Can't Get Indiana Off My Mind," "On the Banks of Wabash," and Indiana and Purdue loyalty songs. Even where there were no special table parties for the members of the club, whenever there was singing in the dining hall, the Indiana girls started their state songs.

Yes, that occasion showed the spirit of these girls, and they've had many others like it. Their efforts along this line have consisted of plans for a bridge tournament, parties, and the annual get-together at Turkey Run State Park during summer, insuring the joys of companionship for all. So, here's a cheer for those peppy girls from Indiana—Indiana, we're all for you.

Home Ec. Students Make Excellent Home Makers

Beginning its long list of activities for the year, the MacMurray Home Economics Club entertained prospective members at a picnic in September, and in October formally inducted them into the club. This year, too, it changed its policy in order to admit the freshmen majors into membership.

President "Stude" lectures on textile samples.

Those in charge of the splendid work which the club has done this year have been these officers: president, Margaret Studebaker; vice-president, Betty Fay Fry; secretary, Betty Ann Green; and, treasurer, Mary Elizabeth Erkert. In addition to the advisor of the club, Miss Empo Henry, four delegates represented MacMurray College at the annual convention of the State Home Economics Association in Peoria.

When Y.W. Christmas bazaar time came around, this organization kept up its reputation for good ideas, sponsoring a booth which featured health foods, including milk and apples. Cookies all packed and ready for mailing were also sold.

In their free time, the girls did their part for the war effort, knitting for the Red Cross. In addition, they helped wrap bandages at the Red Cross center. Tironian Club, an organization for business majors and minors, started a busy year with a welcome to new members. Miss Crum, who was at MacMurray when the club was organized, told its history. The meeting was held in Theta Hall. Dr. Frances Whitehead, the new head of the business department, served punch and cookies.

Programs for the year were planned by Gwen Schwab, program chairman. Ann Parsons directed a comedy skit caricaturing job applicants. A spring fashion show was planned by Dorothy Bonds. Coats, suits, and dresses from the Emporium, chosen for their appropriateness for the office girl, were worn by the models. At another meeting, hair styles were created by Your Shop for several members of the club. The stylist lectured to the group, pointing out the more attractive styles for different shaped faces. In the late spring, the annual formal banquet was held at the Colonial Inn.

Officers for the year were Mildred Worner, president; Carline Crum, vice president; Margaret Foley, secretary; and Dorothy Beach, treasurer.

Scribblers Encourage Creative Writing

It is the purpose of Scribblers' Club, Mac-Murray's only organization of an entirely literary nature, to stimulate creative writing among its members and on the campus. To this end, the group publishes its magazine, Inkspirations, each spring, in which are printed the winning poems, essays, plays, and stories resulting from a school-wide contest.

Membership in Scribblers' Club is limited and is determined by tryouts at the beginning of each semester. The newcomers to the group are first given an informal initiation during which they must wear feathers in their hair and post original scribblings upon campus trees, and are later formally recognized as members of the club. Manuscript meetings are held once a month, and constructive criticism is offered by fellow Scribblers and their advisor, Dr. Dorothy Burrows.

A project traditionally assigned to the group is the designing of MacMurray Christmas cards. Marjorie Fox was in charge of the preparation for this year's cards, which were sold as Scribblers' project for the Christmas bazaar. The Christmas season was also the occasion for the group's alumnae party.

Scribblers' open meeting, held April 15, was arranged by Joan Sargent. The publication of Inkspirations brought to a close a most successful club year, under the leadership of President Grace Fenne. Other officers were Margrette Lyman, vice-president and keeper of the archives; and Alice Godard, secretary-treasurer.

Ever since the attendance of Springfield girls at MacMurray College has been great enough to facilitate an organization, the Springfield Club has been functioning for the benefit of present Mac girls and for prospective "Mac-ites." The first objective of the organization in the fall is to acquaint incoming freshmen with other Mac girls from their home city and to help them enjoy their new experiences in Jacksonville.

But the Springfield Club does not cease to function when orientation week and Sophomore counselors are only memories, for table parties in the dining hall, social meetings, and the annual spring luncheon are only a few of the activities which fill the club's calendar.

At Christmas time occurs the outstanding activity of the year, when a luncheon for prospectives is held in the Leland Hotel Sunroom in Springfield. This year, Mr. Harold E. Gibson attended as guest speaker and showed several colored movies of life on the MacMurray campus.

This relatively newly organized club had a very successful year under the capable leadership of its president, Maxine Morris, and its secretary-treasurer, Natacha Pehlman.

"So Proudly We Hail"-from Michigan

At last the Michigan "MacMurray-ites" have declared themselves on the campus! When twenty-nine girls hailing from that state found each other at MacMurray this fall, they felt they rated recognition, so in October the Michigan Club came into being, with Mr. Jess Ewer, MacMurray College representative, acting as advisor for the group.

Primarily organized to enable the Michigan girls to hold social functions together during vacations and to help prospectives to become familiar with the college, its students, and its traditions, the club has already begun fulfilling its purpose. During the first semester, table parties were held in McClelland Dining Hall, at which the girls sang Michigan songs, made new acquaintances, and cemented the bonds of friendship already existing between them. At Christmas time they met for luncheon at the Woman's City Club in Detroit. Although the short spring vacation did not afford time for a meeting, the club later held a picnic out at the P. E. cabin.

Plans for the summer promise a tea or a bridge party to which both prospective students and present club members will be invited.

Those girls who received the distinction of holding the first offices in the new Mac-Murray Michigan club are Margaret Brundage, president, sophomore from Detroit; Miriam Heidman, vice-president, sophomore from Detroit; and Doris Brooks, secretary-treasurer, freshman from Grosse Pointe.

The members of this club, as the name suggests, are those girls whose year-round address is Jacksonville, Illinois, or any of the smaller towns in the vicinity. On the Monday nights set aside for the club meetings, the members of the Jacksonville Club gather together to plan their future activities at an informal pot-luck supper in their room, which is located in the basement of Main Hall. Attractively furnished with deep divans at one end and tables at the other, this room serves the girls as a place to meet, rest, or study between classes.

During the second semester, the Jackson-ville Club held a dinner in the Town Girls' room, and included in their guest list Dean Mary E. Baird, Dean Roma N. Hawkins, Dean Wendell S. Dysinger, President and Mrs. Clarence P. McClelland, Miss Amelia DeMotte, Miss Elsa P. Kimball, faculty sponsor of the club, and Mrs. Applebee of Your Shop, who spoke to the group.

In December, the members decided to give a patriotic Christmas party, in the form of a barbeque at the P. E. cabin on Lake Mauvaisterre. Instead of exchanging Christmas gifts, everyone brought war stamps.

Because of war conditions, the annual dance given by the club was called off, and at present the members of this organization are concentrating their efforts on the purchase of a war bond.

Jean Milstead, a senior, has been president of the Jacksonville Club this year. Jean Coonen, another senior, has served as vice-president. The position of secretary was filled by Carolyn Carver, a sophomore, and two juniors, Betty Ann Green and Dorothy McGinnis, held the respective offices of treasurer and program chairman.

A.C.E. Members Prepare to Teach Small Children

The MacMurray Association of Childhood Education is one of the eight branches of the Illinois State A. C. E. When the annual convention was held this year in Springfield, many of the members attended. Miss Gwendolyn Addenbrooke, sponsor of the MacMurray group, was elected vice-president of the state chapter.

During the year, the A. C. E. has enjoyed hearing several very fine speakers. One of the most interesting was Miss Milligan, who discussed various methods of teaching handicapped children. This year the Mac-Murray kindergarten has become a part of the Jacksonville Public School System. The members of the club have appropriated money to buy a gift for the Kindergarten. All the members have enjoyed the new location at Franklin School, since it gives them a better opportunity to observe the school as a whole.

The annual Christmas Bazaar was arranged with the Y.W.C.A. and turned out to be a huge success. Another of the club's traditional projects is the operetta which is produced each year by the seniors with the kindergarten children as the participating cast. These little playlets never fail to delight the audiences.

The year of activities was climaxed by the annual breakfast given the seniors by the other members of the club.

Marguerite Sethness served as president of the association for the year. Catherine Angel was vice-president; Mary Gillhouse, secretary; and Ruth Jane Lang, treasurer.

P. E. Club Makes Cabin Redecoration Its Project

Working together throughout the year, the members of the Physical Education Club have made their organization one of the most active on the campus. Yes, those P. E. majors and minors really have what it takes!

"Club 13" Quintet Swings Out.

This year, they set themselves the goal of redecorating the P. E. cabin, owned and operated by the club for the enjoyment of the entire student body. To raise money for this project, the members staged an entertainment on Friday, November 13.

That was an All-MacMurray dance at the "Club 13" McClelland Dining Hall in disguise.) Among the various attractions offered to its guests were dance contests, bridge playing, refreshments and a floor show by the club members. This was such a success that it is hoped it will be an annual affair.

MacMurray has definitely been made conscious of the club's aims and, of their bringing them to realization. Riding Club Displays Splendid Horsemanship

Equus, the Riding Club mascot, proudly described the club's activities. "We've certainly had a busy year!" he commented. "First, in the fall, we had tryouts to choose our new members. A little later, remember Mac's meet with Monticello, which our riders won? We won again in competition at Lindenwood! This spring, there were return meets with Monticello and Lindenwood. And who could forget the Spring Horse Show staged among our own Mac riders?"

"Of course," he snorted, "our time hasn't been entirely occupied with shows. We've had regularly scheduled rides for club members, and even sponsored riding for A.A. credit, with instruction by the riding team. And, this spring we began giving achievement ratings for our members.

"Yes, we really have made strides! Responsible for success have been the guidance of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Crabtree and the members' co-operation under the leadership of President Doris Greenwalt, Vicepresident Hope Ayrault, Secretary-treasurer Betty Hartman, A.A. representative, Peg Kilmer, Team Manager, Natacha Pehlman, and Publicity Manager Mary Frances Lyster."

A. A. Council Manages Sports Seasons

The A. A. Council meets annually at the beginning of each year to discuss plans and to determine the policy for the year. The Council is presided over by the Vice-President of the Athletic Association and is attended by the sports managers of all seventeen of the major sports which are included in the organized recreation program on campus. Special meetings are called throughout the year when it is necessary to coordinate the program into a unified whole or when difficulties arise which must be staightened out by discussion in Council meetings.

It is the specified duty of the A. A. Council to organize all sports activities and to see that these activities are carried on. This year the Council was headed by Jan Wessel, a capable senior who guided the Council through an exceedingly successful year.

The activities represented in the Council included hockey, basketball, hiking, golf, ping pong, riding, M.C.D.T., dance, bowling on the green, badminton, roller and ice skating, bicycling, archery, and volleyball. Each sport's manager was responsible for contacting the student body and making her sport attractive enough to get the students to go out for it. This has been done by advertisement, novelty ideas, enthusiasm, and chapel skits.

The great success of the Council's work has been evidenced by the extraordinarily large participation in all of the sports and by the large number of awards which were given at the end of the year.

Army and Navy Tie, 2-2, in Traditional Game

Hockey, the major sport of the chill fall season, has become one of the favorite sports of the entire year at MacMurray. After tryouts, the most efficient players were picked from each of the four classes, and these girls represented their respective classes in the interclass competition. This competition was in the form of a round robin tournament, and at its conclusion, it was found that our seniors had swept all other classes before them and had won all their games. The sophomores came in second with only one defeat.

On Thanksgiving day in the morning, the annual Army-Navy hockey game was held. The seniors and sophomores made up the Navy team, while the Army team was composed of the juniors and freshmen. It was a perfect day, and there was a large crowd on each side of the field.

THE NAVY: Coffman, Ingram, Hauer, Nash, Hartman, Clark, Yager, Bruce, Wessel, J. Blake, Heffer, Carpenter. KNEELING: Kriegshauser, captain.

THE VARSITY: Helen Redmond, Maybelle Reeder, Rose Essley, Betty Hartman, Jean Cameron, Rita Sve, Barbara Blake, Janet Blake, Sara Yager, Janet Wessel, Pat Heffer, Jan McElhinney.

Betty Kriegshauser, captain for the Navy, and Barbara Blake, captain for the Army, met to give last-minute instructions to their respective teams, the bullie was taken, and the game was on. Both teams fought for their goals, everyone cheered them on, and at the half the Navy team was ahead 2-0. During the half, the Army supporters staged a parade and pep rally, and were on hand to cheer their team as they emerged from Jane Hall. In an exciting second half, the Army tied the score, 2-2, and for the second consecutive year, the Army-Navy game ended in a tie.

One week later table parties were held in the dining hall for all hockey players of the year, and at that time the choice for the Varsity was made public. Thirteen girls were chosen for their skill in playing the game and for their sportsmanship on the field. The team included the following girls: Barb Blake, Jan Blake, Jean Cameron, Peggy Coffman, Rose Essley, Betty Hartman, Pat Heffer, Betty Kriegshauser, Jan McElhinnay, Maybelle Reeder, Helen Redmond, Rita Sve, Jan Wessel, and Sara Yager. Recognition was also given to Fran Nash, who was the manager of the hockey season.

Undefeated Seniors Win Inter-class Tournament

Navy Stops Army's Three-Year Winning Streak

One of the most popular sports of the year is basketball. After the four classes had battled enthusiastically for the championship title, which the seniors triumphantly claim, the captains met to pick the Army and Navy teams. The night of the game was a thrilling one; the balcony was overflowing with loyal rooters. The Navy was out to put a stop to the Army's long record of consecutive wins, while the Army strove valiantly to continue the good work of its predecessors. After a fast and exciting game the hard-shooting Navy rolled up a score of 43 points against 25 for the illfated Army team.

Varsity!—The aspiration of every player who steps out on the basketball floor; the highest honor that can be paid to any MacMurray basketeer. The members of the Varsity are chosen for individual ability on the basketball floor. Each year the girls are chosen who display the highest standards of sportsmanship and fair play. They must be speedy, but calm and accurate.

Of the ten chosen, five were from the senior class: Jan Blake, whose eagle-eye made her opponents shudder every time she had the ball; Jan McElhinney, whose speedy and brilliant playing made her a very formidable opponent; Leone Bruce, whose thoughtful, carefully calculated work made her an invaluable asset; Betty Hartman, whose hold and aggressive play bewildered even the best of opponents; and Sara Yager, who was always there when needed. The juniors were represented by only one player, but that one was the skillful and fast-moving Barb Blake, whose basket-shooting was sensational. The two sophomores were Fran Nash and Esther Singer, calm, level-headed, and outstanding in their playing ability. The remaining members of this year's Varsity were the cool-headed Phil Jacobi and the quick and skillful Rose Essley—two top-notch freshmen. And that was this year's Varsity squad—sportsmanship personified!

Mac Murray Enters Enthusiastically Into the

At four-thirty every afternoon MacMurray forgets its troubles for an hour and goes in for recreational sports in a big way. In cooperation with the national health campaign the girls of MacMurray joined the large-scale "back to health through exercise" program which was under the auspices of the Athletic Association Council.

Perhaps the most important single sports event during the year was the water show given for the Dads on "Dads' Day," March 18. This year June Hauer was in charge of this event, with Sarah Yager general chairman of the entire day. The theme of the 1943 show was "Rippling Rhythm", giving opportunity for synchronized swimming, tandems, floating patterns, diving, and comedy capers.

Another important feature of the sports year was the big Play Day held early in March. Because of war conditions, it was impossible for outside schools to participate in this event. However, undaunted, the committees under Fran Nash divided the school itself into six teams and Play Day want on as usual. The theme of the entire day was "Tool Chest Fun Fest", and was climaxed by a Screwdriver Hop in the Hub. Pottawattamee Junior College (seniors), Century U. (faculty), Kemper Kuties (juniors), Rambling Wrecks (Sophomores), Podunk Center and the Bloomer Girls (freshmen), all competed in ping pong, badminton, volley ball, and swimming. Ping pong was won by Pottawattamee Junior College with Century U. a close second. Podunk Center walked off with the badminton honors, while volleyball was won by the Kemper Kuties. Teams were so evenly matched that no single team was able to take the prize in all events.

During the winter the most popular sports were hiking, indoor roller skating, ping pong, and bowling. An interesting addition was the MacMurray Corps of Drill and Tactics, known on campus as the M.C.D.T.'s. In the spring, baseball was the main attraction.
